p. 20

Covenant pastors and leaders share the holy and unholy chronicles of life with cancer.

1. Kelly Johnston writes that she is trying to trust each day to God and be thankful for it. How does her story help you find gratitude in your own difficult situations?
2. Hope is better than no hope, so I live hopefully,” says Dick Lucco. Do you think living hopefully is a choice?
3. David Beck scored surprisingly high on a happiness inventory test after he was diagnosed with cancer. How do you define “happy”? How would you explain the ability to be happy in the midst of such a challenging circumstance?
4. Psalm 27 was a great comfort to Rebecca Gonzalez throughout her cancer journey—initially she focused on the words dwell, behold, and inquire. What do those words mean to you in the context of illness or other painful situations?
5. Writing about his hopes for the afterlife, Mike FitzGerald wonders if he will be able to read for pleasure. What things do you think and hope will be there?
